FUN FACTS ABOUT OUR PIPES

- First Unitarian has the fifth largest instrument in Worcester County (the largest being at All Saints Church, installed in 1933). Worcester is known as the "Pipe Organ Capital of New England" because it has so many fine instruments.
- The tallest pipe (in the balcony chambers) results in a very low pitch of 16 Hertz (cycles per second). Only high-end stereo speakers can produce low frequencies much below 50 Hz. Some of the taller pipes are higher than the chamber ceilings, and are "mitered" (segments cut at an angle to "bend" the pipe to make an elbow or U-turn in the pipe) in order to fit.
- The shortest pipe's speaking (resonating air column) length is less than 1/2 inch, with a pitch higher than some people can hear (and higher than all but the best hi-fi speakers can produce) over 16,000 Hz.
- The organ pipes and windchests weigh more than 20 tons, equivalent to the weight of three full-grown elephants.
- Organ pipes are made out of wood or metal. For the metal pipes, special alloy (tin, lead, zinc) ratios are chosen for each rank in order to produce an optimal timbre (tone). When the seasons (temperature and humidity) change, the pipes can go out of tune with each other. Tuning is accomplished by adjusting the length of the pipe (for flue pipes) or the length of the vibrating reed (for reed/brass-instrument pipes).
- Organ pipes are grouped into "divisions" ("departments" if you're from England) which in our instrument correspond to the manuals (keyboards). Two of our divisions are "under expression" those pipes are enclosed in a wooden chamber. The front of this large box has a set of shades (louvres, like Venetian blinds) which open and close to make the sound of those pipes louder or softer.
- Before the Industrial Revolution, pipe organs were the most complex large machines invented. (Clocks were complex small machines.)
- Because the organist plays with two hands AND two feet, organ music scores typically have a separate bass clef just for the notes played by the feet. Organists wear special shoes with thin soles and thick (~1" high) heels to allow agility in playing complex passages on the pedalboard. The feet alone can play up to 4- or 5-note chords (using the heels AND toes of both feet, angled), taking advantage of the raised black note keys.
- The pipe chest action (valve mechanism under each pipe) is electro-pneumatic. The organ's "brain" is a series of microcontrollers (motherboards) which scan the keyboards thousands of times per second to determine which keys are pressed. The time-multiplexed data travels over a CAT-5 (ethernet-like) cable from the console into the organ chamber where it is decoded. Wires then carry current to activate tiny electro-magnets for each pipe.

THE ORGANS AT FIRST UNITARIAN CHURCH

First Unitarian Church of Worcester was founded in 1785. The original meeting house building at the present site was dedicated in 1851, and various pipe organs were installed in 1855, 1901, and 1922, before we installed our current Aeolian/Skinner pipe organ in 1963-64. In 2000, roof replacement work caused a steeple and roof fire which resulted in $4 million in damages to the church, and $750,000 in damages to the organ. The organ was expertly rebuilt by Russell and Co. of Vermont, with some tonal additions, and a dedication service in January 2004 and a dedicatory concert series in October 2004. In 2010 the organ was dedicated to Will Sherwood in celebration of his 25th year at First Unitarian. In 2013, a new & unique organ bench was custom built and dedicated in memory of Gordon Gurney, solo emeritus and organ curator for five decades. The bench features a flip-top seat (on hinges) which allows flexible height adjustment for different organists and allows the organist to easily stand to conduct a cappella repertoire from the console position. In 2021, a new movable console was installed in the front of the church and dedicated in memory of David Bayer. In 2022, a new 5-rank "Portativ" chamber organ was installed. Both consoles can fully play both organs.

The gallery organ has a total of 81 stops, and 3994 pipes in 67 ranks. The new organ's five ranks have 281 pipes, and provides flexibility for accompanying the choir and soloists downstairs, as well as antiphonal organ works to allow the front and back pipes to join together.

HISTORIC PIPES IN OUR NEW PORTATIV CHAMBER ORGAN

The flute rank in our new organ has historic roots in Worcester. Half of this rank is from the Opus 1686 Aeolian (builder) organ (built in 1928), at that time called a Spanish Flute. That organ was commissioned by Aldus Chapin Higgins for the Higgins House, which is now a part of WPI. Aldus was the maternal uncle of the late Roz Bennett who was a life-long member of First U and cherished member of our choir for many years.

ORGAN DEDICATION

Adapted from James Luther Adams

We dedicate this instrument to the holy work of beauty: the work of creating music that lifts souls, heals wounds, and joins the harmony of the cosmos.

We dedicate it to our shared vision of love, truth, worship, and service, remembering that music carries the spirit where words cannot go, and reminds us of the divinity we all share.

Through music people are freed from bondage to the pressing environment. It is a nonreducible mode of beauty, of contrast and resolution, of order and of ecstasy flowing through and beyond the order.

Music reaffirms the song of the morning stars at the beginning of creation. In music, alienation and tragedy are overcome, even though there will always be suffering.

Music gives utterance to the protest against social evil, and summons us to participation in change. Music rouses us to a new sense of promise and serves as a judgment upon the actualities of the present.

Music redefines, illumines, refreshes, orders our experience. It is a gift of grace. Through music, we join in singing: Holy! Holy! Holy!

He has been a strong advocate of providing education and performance opportunities for young musicians. First Unitarian Church has several such programs originated by Will: Young Artists in Residence, Young Church Musician Interns, Young Musician Concert Series, etc. The Worcester AGO Will Sherwood Scholarship program, which provides lessons for talented organists, was named in his honor. During his tenure at First Unitarian, he produced and directed three choral and instrumental CD albums.

Over the years he has organized fundraising concerts for Worcester homeless agencies, as well as Heifer Project International, Habitat for Humanity, Katrina relief, and most recently a service of prayer and healing for Ukraine. He's had widespread musical collaboration with organizations in the Worcester area: WPI music and robotics ensembles, Joy of Music Program, Worcester Youth Orchestra, and others.

GRATITUDE TO FIRST UNITARIAN CHURCH

The first time I ever heard a live symphony orchestra was in college: the Pittsburgh Symphony and chorus performed the Berlioz Requiem. Needless to say my socks were no longer on my feet. It is the dream of conductors to perform the Requiems of Verdi and Berlioz.

Today we are able to perform the best of the best: the most famous and memorable movements from beloved requiem compositions, and of course very fitting for my final Music Sunday at First U. I did an incredible amount of sorting/filtering/prioritizing through my bucket list of titles to choose the most meaningful music that could fit into the confines of a Music Sunday service and utilizing the resources available.

We are able to accomplish all of today's music because of the amazing support from our congregation throughout the years – you've been so kind with your encouragement and financial support.

It's been wonderful and rewarding to be among you and work with you to create glorious music for the church and community. May the instruments we dedicate and the music we make today echo on in your lives and spirits to bring comfort and joy for generations to come.

ABOUT WILL SHERWOOD

Will began playing the piano at age 5, by ear, playing funeral hymns that were "broadcast" almost daily over the cemetery grounds speakers adjacent to his childhood home. His aunt took him on Sunday afternoons to play the pipe organ at the church where she was organist - it's that 1917 instrument that joins a second pipe organ in his home. He assumed various church organist positions starting at age 12, with his first organist-director position in Pittsburgh while he attended college at CMU. After having earned a BSEE and MSEE in four years in Computer Engineering, during the week he enjoyed a very successful career at DEC (Digital Equipment Corporation) which later became a part of Intel. Managing a group of 70 engineers in the area of VLSI microprocessor validation (making sure the chip designs work in all cases), he helped produce many of DEC's computer chips, obtained two patents, and mentored many young engineers in developing their own careers. He founded the original DECarolers, a holiday a cappella vocal group that toured engineering facilities each December, not only for Digital's engineering sites, but also competitors' workplaces at that time: Prime, Data General, Apollo, and others. The caroling group also brought holiday cheer to homeless shelters in central Mass and in Boston.

He has been guest organ soloist with the Boston Pops (today's Poulenc organ concerto), and has performed several organ concert tours in Europe.

He was dean (president) of the Worcester American Guild of Organists (AGO) for eight years, and organized the "2016 Organ Week" at the Worcester Auditorium to celebrate the famous Kimball pipe organ (where he served as curator) – this was the last public performance of that historic instrument before the venue was permanently closed shortly thereafter. (www.WorcAud.com) He is Principal Organist at Mechanics Hall and is Artist Director for their Worcester Organ Concert Series that features the 1864 Hook pipe organ in the Great Hall.

MUSIC AT FIRST UNITARIAN CHURCH

Music, because of its deeply spiritual power to inspire our emotions or illustrate a text, often better than the spoken word, plays an integral role in worship. Music is a universal language, and, with people around the world each week, we celebrate and express our faith through the singing of hymns, anthems, and solos, all accompanied by pipe organ, piano, harpsichord, and a variety of other fine instruments.

People come to church hungry: hungry for glimpses of harmony and peace, hungry for moments of joy and comfort. Beautiful music, presented in a sacred space, can answer that hunger. But it is in the context of worship where the architectural elegance and simplicity of the sanctuary provide the perfect setting for sacred music. On Sunday morning people regularly experience and appreciate the wonderful and varied musical programs of First Unitarian Church. Visitors come to hear our wonderful choir (based on its fine reputation in the community), and then they return to explore spirituality and theology. The universal language of music transcends all theological and regional categories. Atheists and agnostics speak of their love for Bach's Cantatas or Mozart's Requiem Mass. Native Yankees are enthusiastic supporters of Gospel Sundays, and shed tears listening to a solo of "Precious Lord, Lead Me Home." In the choral introit, when 35 choir members stand in the midst of the congregation in the center aisle and sing an African chant of welcome, we are powerfully communicating the congregation's commitment to becoming a multi-cultural community. Because of the excellence of the music program, many professional musicians have joined the congregation and regularly volunteer to perform solos and accompany the choir. When the superb pipe organ, timpani, and trumpets accompany a congregational hymn, everyone's spirits are lifted.

Music and the arts are one of the important ways that First Unitarian welcomes the larger community into our church. Hopefully, it is also one way that the church sends people back out into the world restored, refreshed, and with more vision and energy to do the work we are called to do. We are fortunate to have been led in our musical journeys for the past three decades by Will Sherwood whose initial charge was to put "First Unitarian on the Worcester (musical) map" and whose audition/interview included fixing several problems in the pipe chambers so he could rally all the organ's forces to convey his enthusiasm for, and love of, music. Through his leadership, we have one of the best choirs of any Unitarian Universalist Church in the country. And so it has been that we all have been infected with his vibrant and positive spirit for music and for life.

PIE JESU

Merciful Jesus, Grant them rest everlasting

LUX AETERNA

May eternal light shine on them, Lord, as with your saints in eternity, because you are merciful. Grant them eternal rest, Lord, and let perpetual light shine on them.

O NATA LUX

O born light of light, Jesus redeemer of the world, mercifully deem worthy and accept praises and prayers from your supplicants. Who once was clothed in the flesh for those who are lost. Allow us to become members of your spirit.

ODE TO JOY

The "Ode to Joy" text that Beethoven employed, was written by the German poet, Johann Christoph Friedrich von Schiller, in the summer of 1785. It was a celebratory poem addressing the freedom, peace, and unity of all mankind.

O friends, no more of these sounds!

Let us sing more cheerful songs, More songs full of joy!

Joy! Joy, bright spark of divinity,

Daughter of Elysium, Fire-inspired we tread Within thy sanctuary.

Thy magic power re-unites All that custom has divided,

All men become brothers, Under the sway of thy gentle wings.

Whoever has created An abiding friendship,

Or has won A true and loving wife,

All who can call at least one soul theirs, Join our song of praise;

But those who cannot must creep tearfully Away from our circle.

All creatures drink of joy At natures breast. Just and unjust

Alike taste of her gift; She gave us kisses and the fruit of the vine,

A tried friend to the end.

Even the worm can feel contentment, And the cherub stands before God!

Gladly, like the heavenly bodies Which He sent on their courses

Through the splendor of the firmament; Thus, brothers, you should run your race, Like a hero going to victory! You millions, I embrace you.

This kiss is for all the world!

Brothers, above the starry canopy There must dwell a loving father.

Do you fall in worship, you millions? World, do you know your creator?

Seek Him in the heavens; Above the stars must he dwell.

TRANSLATIONS AND LYRICS

CREDO - I Believe In One World At Peace

Music by Will Sherwood; Lyrics by - Jim Scott

Oh Spirit beyond all names, beyond all image and identity,

Know us here, feel our intention,

And let our presence on this Earth be healing.

Let us make a new creation, a new work of art, a new humanity. Let us have

- the courage to defend the worth and dignity of all people,
- the wisdom to know the Earth and its wealth is not ours.
- the compassion to feel the pain of injustice

What affects one of us touches us all.

There is no immunity, only denial.

Let us lead by example, let us learn as we teach,

Let us carry peace as our weapon, and love as our revenge.

May we see widely enough to perceive the vision of one world at peace.

We will one day hand this world over, let it be whole.

LACRIMOSA

That day of tears and mourning, when from the ashes shall arise, all humanity to be judged. Spare us by your mercy, Lord, gentle Jesus, grant them eternal rest. Amen

DIES IRAE

Day of wrath, day of anger will dissolve the world in ashes, as foretold by David and the Sibyl. Great trembling there will be when the Judge descends from heaven to examine all things closely.

TUBA MIRUM

The trumpet will send its wondrous sound throughout earth's sepulchers and gather all before the throne. Death and nature will be astounded, when all creation rises again.

LIBER SCRIPTUS

A book will be brought forth, in which all will be written, by which the world will be judged.

When the judge takes his place, what is hidden will be revealed, nothing will remain unavenged.

What shall a wretch like me say? Who shall intercede for me, when the just ones need mercy?

ABOUT TODAY'S MUSIC

With the "Requiem", sacred music confronts one of the most difficult subjects that human beings face: our death and the ultimate meaning of our existence. While the particular Requiem selections sung today were originally composed for the repose of the souls of the dead in the Roman Catholic and Anglican Churches, this powerful music also invokes a universal experience of remembrance. The majestic, the terrible, and the mysterious reality of human mortality is at the center of this music.

Some of the sublime melodies and lovely harmonies in a Requiem speak to our human hope for comfort and mercy and "perpetual light." The minor and somber passages address the experiences of loss, and the fear of entering the realm of wrath, anger and judgment, giving voice to our grief, discord, and pain. However, the music also gives expression to our longing for peace, grace, and forgiveness. Death confounds all of our understanding; yet in the music of the Requiem, one can catch glimpses of ethereal beauty, order, and harmony which allow us to transcend our ordinary places of awareness and move closer to what is greater than our limited understanding, closer to what is true, closer to God.

Today we compare various composers' artistic treatments in their Requiem music. The intensity and the compassion of this tragic view of the human condition evoke a wide range of interpretations and musical styles. "Requiem" means "rest": music that is a prayer for comfmting rest for the living, as much as for the deceased. The music asks us to "grant us rest" even more than to "grant them rest."

We invite you to look beyond the perennial controversies of who wrote what, when, and how, and in this sacred space where Requiems are sung and heard, we hope you will find solace for your spirit in this haunting and beautiful music. Thank you for being here to share these wonderful masterpieces with us today

SAINT-SAENS - THE SWAN

The most famous and beloved movement from the Carnival of the Animals, "The Swan" is a luscious flight through musical space and emotion. It is the penultimate movement of 14 animal caricatures originally for cello and two pianos. Today, we hear the world premiere of this arrangement for violin, cello, organ flute, and harp. Saint-Saens got his inspiration from Tennyson's poem "The Dying Swan," but the swirling melody and obbligatos performed today are anything but dying. The graceful interweaving of the three instrumental voices glides effortlessly to raise our spirits with its sweet caress for our souls.

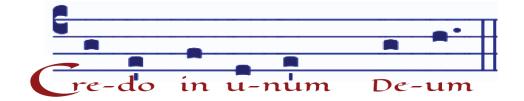

POULENC - CONCERTO

Poulenc! Concerto! A perfect combination to boldly inaugurate our new chamber organ portativ. We present a surround-sound experience of contrasting timbres that offers an aural tour of our organs and newly refurbished timpani. Will first performed this concerto in 1978 as guest soloist with the Boston Pops.

The Concerto opens with a thunderously Gothic, Bach-like flourish, followed by an allegro giocoso recalling the impish Poulenc of younger days, leading to a lyrical slow section - a quasi-lamentoso tune of the sort not uncommon in some of the composer's earlier chamber music. The work alternates guick and slow sections, with touches of a Stravinsky-like ostinato. A wonderful moment is the beatific viola solo, encircled by organ and timpani, near the end of the work. The concerto was commissioned in 1934 by Princesse Edmond de Polignac (a.k.a Winaretta Singer), heir to the Singer sewing machine fortune, and a patron of the arts with considerable wealth. This was Poulenc's first foray into writing for the organ, and in preparation he studied the masters of the past, Bach and Buxtehude, and of the present, enlisting the help of Duruflé (who also premiered the piece) with registration (stop selection) and voicing (arrangement of notes within chords).

SHERWOOD - CREDO

For years I've wanted to find (or write) a Credo for the Earth and Humanity, perhaps to be integrated into a performance of Missa Gaia (Earth Mass) which itself is often performed as an organic array of collected movements.

Today we hear the world premiere of this exciting new work for choir, soloists, harp, organ, and orchestra. The composition's musical theme is based on the traditional Gregorian Chant melody for Credo, as presented first by woodwinds and then tenor soloist. The full spectrum of the orchestra's timbres are used throughout to highlight each instrument family, beginning with the ethereal and haunting open-string fabric of the string section, and culminating in a single pitch representing unity.

In searching for texts, my long-time colleague Jim Scott (UU singer, songwriter; one of the composers of Missa Gaia) mentioned he had a poem among his writings that he offered to let me use. Of the lyrics, Jim Scott writes: "If we are not addressing some powerful, loving, yet wrathful, deity, then how do we express our gratitude. What creed will speak for our intention, to be healers, peacemakers, and, who is listening? Where mere words fall short, on wings of song our intention somehow mystically travels further. Perhaps the echoes of our cries and vows bounce back to lift us up again. We promise to make good use of our sacred time here."
